

IV Mon. June hath xxx days.

Observe the daily circle of the sun,
And the short year of each revolving moon:
By them thou shalt foresee the following day,
Nor shall a starry night thy hopes betray.
When first the moon appears, if then she shrouds
Her silver crescent, tip'd with sable clouds,
Conclude she bodes a tempest on the main,
And brews for fields impetuous floods of rain.

V Mon. July hath xxxi days.

Ev'n while the reaper fills his greedy hands,
And binds the golden sheafs in brittle bands:
Oft have I seen a sudden storm arise
From all the warring winds that sweep the skies:
And oft whole sheets descend of flucy rain,
Suck'd by the spungy clouds from off the main;
The lofty skies at once come pouring down,
The promis'd crop and golden labours drown.
